HERE AND THERE

If you have friends visiting you, or if you are going on a "trip," please drop a note to that effect.

Mr. George Kelley of Mt. Carmel was a visitor in this city Saturday.

Miss Bessie Bauer of West Third street is visiting Miss Annie Flanery of Brooksville, Ky.

Mr. David Cole of West Second street is visiting his cousins, Messrs.
Arthur of Millersburg.

Col. Polk Johnson of Louisville is the guest of his old friend, Col. W. H.
Robb of Helena Station.

Mr. Vergil Roberts of Lexington is visiting his cousin, Mr. Stanley Mc-Dowell of West Fourth street.

Miss Katherine Schwartz of West Second street left yesterday on a month's visit with her sister in Pittsburg, Pa.

Miss Roberta Stevens has returned to her home on Commerce street after a visit with relatives in Huntington, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ballue have returned to their home on West Third street after a two weeks' trip to Northport, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gifford and daughters, Pearl and Lodena, are visiting Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Felts of East Second street.

Miss Margaret Sayres of Augusta is being pleasantly entertained by the Misses Downey at Second and Commerce streets.

Mrs. James Childs and sons, James and Joseph, left Saturday for a visit to her sister, Mrs. Richard Williams, at Huntington, W. Va.

Mr. Louis Vanden of Cincinnati,

Sam Farrow of East Front street, who has been quite ill for the past few weeks.

Mr. M. F. Kehoe, the local postmaster, is visiting his brother, Mr. Dexter Kehoe, of Washington City. During his absence, Mr. Nelson Bratton, the efficient clerk of the postoffice will act as postmaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Paul of St. Bernard, Cincinnati, passed through this city Saturday in their automobile.
They will make a tour through Central Kentucky and will pass through here again on their return trip.

LEAVE FOR RUGGLES

Quite a number of people are leaving for Ruggles Campgrounds for a week's stay before the opening of the meetings. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Simons of Forest avenue, left yesterday for the popular place and Mr. and Mrs.
William Smith, Mrs. Sam Porter and Mrs. Charles Fiat and daughter left this morning. Already quite a number of campers are on the grounds and a large number will arrive this week.

YOUNG MAN DIES

Mr. Orville Jones, aged 18 years, died at his home on Casto street yesterday morning at 9:05 o'clock of tuberculosis. He is survived by his parents and two sisters. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Olivet Church at Rectortville at 1 o'clock (sundtime).

William H. Orpet, the university student, charged with murdering Marion Lambert, a high school girl and his former sweetheart, was found not guilty by a jury in Judge Donnelly's court at Waukegan, Ill., Saturday after five hours deliberation.

The many friends of Mrs. Jake Helmer will be pleased to learn that she is somewhat improved, but still unable to leave her room.

EXERCISES CUT SHORT

In Laying of Corner Stone of the New Washington Consolidated School Saturday Afternoon—Excellent Address Delivered By W. H. Rees.

The exercises to have been held on last Saturday afternoon in connection with the laying of the corner stone of the new consolidated school now being built at Washington were cut short on account of rain. The shower did not last very long, but as the skies looked very threatening the exercises were closed prematurely.

However, the two hundred or more people present thoroughly the short program which was rendered. After several selections by the Blue Grass Concert Band of this city the exercises opened with an invocation by Rev. Hooper of Washington, followed by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the children of the Washington District School.

Miss Jessie O. Yancey, County School Superintendent, made the opening remarks of the occasion in a few well chosen words.

County Attorney W. H. Rees of this city gave the only address of the afternoon. His subject was "Some Points in Local History" and was very entertaining and instructive. He gave some facts in the history of the Washington neighborhood that are not generally known about here, and also gave much of the early history of the state. He stated that the first settler in this section was Simon Kenton, who, impressed by the fertility of the soil and the richness of the natural resources, decided to come to this section of the country to locate and in 1775, together with other pioneers, formed a settlement at Kenton Station, about a mile from the present town of Washington. They were driven away by the Indians shortly after coming here, but in 1784 he returned and built Kenton Camp. From this time the place steadily grew. Kenton would come to the mouth of Limestone creek and there intercept the flatboats as they passed down the river and urged settlers to locate at his camp. In 1787 McFarr Station was founded and the McKinley block-house was built the same year. Mr. Rees stated that as far as he could find, the charter was granted to the town in 1786, but that he could not find confirmation of this fact. Kenton now owned the tract of land on which Washington was built, he being the possessor of 1,149 acres. He sold a portion of this land and it was divided into town lots and resold. In 1871, when the county was separated from Bracken county, Washington was made the county seat and remained as such until the Civil War. Its population in 1790 was 462, in 1800 it was 500 and in 1810 it reached its zenith, 815. The town was formally established in 1789.

During the early part of the nineteenth century Washington was the most important town in Northern Kentucky with the exception of Lexington. It, with Lexington, was one of the centers of education, and many famous men visited the place.

The first trustees of the town were Edwin Byrne, Edward Waller, Henry Lee, M. Conway, Daniel Boone, Arthur Fox, William Lamb and Edward Gut-tridge.

Two very famous men were born in Washington. The first, Thomas Jes-sep, was a great military genius, and at one time was major-general in the United States Army. The other, Albert Sidney Johnson, was one of the great Confederate commanders of the Civil War.

Education was a great thing during the early part of the history of Washington. The first teacher was a great historian by the name of Dan Butler.
He was followed by David V. Reynolds, who afterwards became an editor of considerable note. Rev. Lorain Andrews then taught for some time, and later became a missionary to the Hawaiian Islands. The next teacher was Joseph Arnold, the instructor of Albert Sidney Johnson. During this time a great female school also flourished under the supervision of Mrs. Louise Fitzhugh Keats, a relative of the great English writer.

Mr. Rees also told of the first church which was established by Rev. William Wood, a Baptist minister, and of the first brick houses north of Lexington. His speech was a most interesting one.

At this juncture a small shower fell and the crowd began to hunt shelter.
Only a few drops came down but they were a warning of what might come.
Mr. McHenry Rhodes, State Supervisor of High Schools, the principal speaker of the afternoon, had to leave to catch his train over the Letoinetaintao his train, but promised to deliver his address at the dedication exercises of the school to be held on its completion, which will be near the first of September.

Amid another small shower Mr. John I. Claybrook, a member of the School Board, then laid the corner stone.
The articles to go into the stone were as follows:

History of Education issued by the State Department.
Kentucky School Report.
Kentucky School Laws.
Educational Directory.
List of text books.

Names of Mason County Board of Education.

Articles of incorporation of the Washington Improvement Company.
Names of stockholders of the Washington Improvement Company.
Names of the teachers.
Report of the Mason County Health League.

Copies of the three local papers.
King James edition of the Bible.
These articles were sealed in the stone and will remain there until the building is torn down.

The speech of Mrs. George Longnecker, President of the Mason County Woman's Club, on "Community Building" was also deferred until the dedication exercises.

Although the exercises were marred by the rain, that part of them that were gone through with were excellent and reflected much credit upon those who planned and prepared the program. The smallness of the crowd was due to the threatening condition of the weather.

The building when completed will be modern in every respect. It will be built of brick, two stories high, and will have six rooms and an auditorium. It will be equipped with water and electricity in every room. There will also be a beautiful five-acre campus in connection.

Mason county can now boast of some of the best schools in the state, and they have nearly all been built within the past ten years. The consolidated school has meant much to the residents of the county and the next few years will see one in every district in the county.

FLORENCE REED AT PASTIME

At the Pastime today the noted screen star, Florence Reed, will appear in "New York," a strong dramatic play in five parts, produced by the famous Gold Rooster players.

Florence Reed receives excellent support from Fannie Martinoff, John Milton, Forrest Wiscout and Jesse Ralph. The Gold Rooster plays will be shown at the Pastime every Monday. "Whose Guilty?" will be shown every Friday in connection with "The Red Circle" serial.

Hon. J. W. Riley Democratic candidate for Congress from this district, spoke on the street Saturday afternoon. A large crowd heard him and who afterwards became an editor of
